

PUREX 2 TIP SOLDER FUME EXTRACTOR

DESCRIPTION

Purex analogue units give a basic overview of their filter condition using a light system based on the front of the unit. A green light indicates the filter is working well, a yellow light shows the filter is nearing saturation and a red light indicates that the filter should be replaced immediately.

This Purex unit is suitable for the extraction of solder fumes in the production and maintenance of electronics. The 2Tip allows the user to attach a soldering iron mounted extraction nib to their soldering system. Multiple tip extractors can be used via connection adaptors.

Fully HEPA filtered to ensure that dangerous particles are captured by the system before air is recirculated back into the work environment.

The kit comes with one connection kit. (1.5M Long hose with a connector for dual silicone tubes to be mounted upon soldering irons)

Constructed from precision made stainless steel.
